Brooke Berman tells a tale of modern love while exploring the bonds of female friendship and the ties of loyalty in her new play, A Perfect Couple. Amy and Isaac are finally tying the knot after fifteen years of dating, living together, and taking breaks from each other. A long weekend settling into their new home with their single best friend, Emma, and their neighbor, Josh, reveals secrets that force these friends to discover who they are now, versus who they thought they would become. This production is being presented by the Women's Expressive Theater and will be performed at the DR2 Theatre. WET was created in 1999 with the mission of producing media that challenges female stereotypes and advocates equality. Executive Producer Sasha Eden explains, "There are very few women writers produced, and there are so many out there. We receive hundreds of scripts and produce seven to ten projects a year." At the DR2 Theatre, WET found a nurturing and inviting environment to present their artists and productions. Eden says Berman's play is "fun, sexy, and smart." A Perfect Couple stars Dana Eskelson, Annie McNamara, Elan Moss-Bachrach, and James Waterston.
